Activated water allows vegetables and cereals to grow better!

In various experimental arrangements and also in many practical applications one thing has become clear: bio-energetically activated water has a considerably positive effect on the growth of various types of cereal and vegetables.

That which has already been proven in studies over many years on the subject of the possibilities for the transfer of bio-resonance and its effect on the germination and growth yield in the horticulture sector is something which our satisfied aquaSpin customers and users will only too readily confirm.

No matter in what area of horticulture or farming, we consistently receive positive feedback regarding the growth yield and shelf-life of cereals, fruit and vegetables.

All users are pleased to have increasing yields and satisfied customers

On the right-hand page you can see photos in which on the left there is irrigation of the same seed with standard mains water and on the right where the water was bio-energetically activated. The difference in growth yield cannot be dismissed.

Experiences in agriculture and livestock:

- Animals prefer vitalised water and drink more of it
- When animals drink activated water the immune system of the animals becomes more robust resulting in fewer costs of veterinary expenses.
- Older animals become more vital
- More beautiful fur thanks to activated water
- Animals become more balanced
- Watering bowls and troughs remain algae-free
- Milk tastes more refined
- Reduction of medicines
- Higher agricultural yields
- Stronger plant growth for example grain, fruits and vegetables.
- Vitalized water lasts longer
- Higher milk output of cows
- Better barn climate and better rotting of the dung
- No increase of flies during heat waves
- Liquid manure can get into aerobic processes thanks to activated water
- Activated water can be applied via a field sprayer for plant and arable soil vitalisation.

“Our well water contains much lime. Since the device has been fitted the pigs drink more. The limescale dissolves more easily.”
